SANOL REMEDIES
SANOL AND SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES EFFECT WONDERFUL CURES
Below is given a copy of a letter from a prominent Winnipeg Druggist. This is but typical of the many we receive, advising of the great demand for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES, and the many cures these sterling remedies effect.
The Sanol Manufacturing Co.,
Winnipeg.

Dear Sirs,—
In regard to the sale of SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES I might say I have been handling the goods for about three months. I was obliged to put in SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES to supply one of my customers, who now is completely cured and whom, I believe, has sent a testimonial to your office. Another customer ordered SANOL and I was obliged to stock it. This gentleman was so well satisfied that he has sent bottles to his friends. Up to this time I had never really taken much interest in the preparations, but when customer after customer would come in and tell us about what SANOL had done for them I came to the conclusion it was worth my while getting behind SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done, and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and recommending it to my customers. This I have done, and I have heard nothing but words of praise for SANOL and SANOL'S ANTI-DIABETES. I am,
Yours truly,

Lazy Man
Nodles is the laziest man I know. He has an invention fixed so that by merely pulling a wire in bed he can light the fire; but that doesn't seem to improve matters.
Why not?
He's too lazy to pull the wire.

Fishy
A gentleman, after lunching off two soles, approached the cashier's desk and said:
I have three fish to pay for.
The waiter (who had attended on him) was passing at the time, and remarked:
No, two, sir.
The gentleman replied:
Excuse me. I have three to pay for—two soles, and one smelt.

An old negro, taken ill, called in a physician of his own race. There being no signs of improvement, he at last asked for a white doctor. The doctor came, felt the old man's pulse and examined his tongue. Did you other doctor take your temperature? he asked. I don't know, sah, replied the negro. I ain't missed anything but my watch so far.

Minard's Liniment used by Physicians

Judge Greenhow, of the Leeds and Wakefield County Court, who has just completed thirty-two years on the bench, has many pleasant reminiscences of Lord Russell, who used to stay with him in his cottage at Esher in Surrey, where, as usual with the future Lord Chief Justice, he ruled everyone with a rod of iron. On one occasion, being in haste to get to his whist, he said to Mr. Greenhow's parlour-maid: Here, Mary, take away the meat; your master has already had far more than enough for him. The maid cleared the table speedily, and the guests sat down to a long night of whist.

Would you really put yourself out for my sake? Indeed, indeed I would! Then do it, please, she murmured, with eyes half closed. I'm awfully, awfully tired!

Wander to the Wife
A lady is trying an experiment. Her husband is a brilliant man, but loquacious. Realizing his shortcomings, the wife is feeding him on fish. Three or four times a week she prepares fish in some delectable way. He is showing some uneasiness and has a marked predilection for water, but being innocent of his wife's motive, continued to eat the dishes set before him.

To her pastor the wife recently confided.
You see, soberly, John is a very remarkable man, but he wastes too much time sermonizing when he should be thinking. He talks altogether too much. To counteract this I am feeding him on fish. During the last two months I have served him with seventeen varieties of fish cooked in forty-seven different ways. Why fish? asked the pastor, greatly interested.

Because, replied the wife, fish is good for thought.

I see, said the reverend gentleman, but have you noticed any marked change?

The wife's face grew sad.
Do you know, Mr. Jones, that husband of mine is such a chatterbox that I do believe he could eat the whale that swallowed Jonah and never lose a syllable.

FROM HALIFAX TO VANCOUVER

WOMEN ARE PRAISING DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Nova Scotia Mother Tells How They Cured Her Aches and Pains, and Made Her a Well Woman Again.
Ecum Secum Bridge, Halifax Co., N.S. (Special)—From Vancouver to Halifax come daily reports of the splendid work Dodd's Kidney Pills are doing for the suffering women of Canada, and this little place can show a splendid cure of its own. Mrs. Orastus Pace, the mother of a large family was a sufferer from those aches and pains only women know. Today she is a strong, healthy woman. Dodd's Kidney Pills did it.

"I had a pain in my left side and down through my hips," Mrs. Pace states. "I had headache all the time. My heart was weak, and at times a pain round it added to my fears. Some days I was hardly able to walk."

"I read of a number of cures of cases like mine by Dodd's Kidney Pills, and sent for three boxes. Today I am a well woman, and can do as much work as ever I could."

Dodd's Kidney Pills cured Mrs. Pace because her troubles came from diseased kidneys. Dodd's Kidney Pills always cure diseased kidneys, and as ninety per cent. of women's troubles come from kidney trouble, Dodd's Kidney Pills have come to be known as suffering woman's best friend.

A Standard Medicine.—Parnelle's Vegetable Pills, compounded of entirely vegetable substances known to have a revivifying and salutary effect upon the digestive organs, have through years of use attained so eminent a position that they rank as a standard medicine. The ailing should remember this. Simple in their composition, they can be assimilated by the weakest stomach and are certain to have a healthful and agreeable effect on the sluggish digestive organs.

Man—the Brute
It was a sweet, sad play, and there was hardly a dry handkerchief in the house. But one man in the gallery among the gods, irritated his companions by refusing to take the performance in the proper spirit. Instead of weeping, he laughed. While others were mopping their eyes and endeavoring to stifle their sobs, his own eyes brimmed with merriment, and he burst into appropriate guffaws.

At last the lady by his side turned upon him indignantly. I don't know what brought you here, she sobbed, with streaming eyes, and pressing her hand against her aching heart; but if you don't like the play you might let other people enjoy it!

That Misleading Announcement.
Boy wanted!
The notice was displayed boldly in the window; and Ben Simmons, after gazing at it thoughtfully for a minute or two, mustered his courage and stepped into the shop.

What kind of a boy is it you want? he asked the manager.

Oh, replied that gentleman, a decent sort of lad—one who is quick and willing, one who won't laze about with a cigarette between his lips and whistle and one—

The youth thrust his hands into his pockets and eyed the manager contemptuously.

Garn! he remarked. You don't want a boy at all. You want a girl!

Welcome
I desire an audience with the manager, remarked the dignified, smooth-faced person as he approached the box office of the theatre.
Step right in, replied the man in the box office. I think he's looking for a few audiences himself.

You used to want to hold my hand before we were married, she complained. I'd like to now, said he easily, but it would keep you from your housework, my dear.

Why They Tittered
He was a good preacher and knew his work, but he made rather a hash of it one Sunday, when he was doing 'sick' for the prison chaplain, in making the following introduction:—My dear brethren, I am so glad to see you gathered here in such large numbers.

Teacher—When did Charles I. make his greatest mistake?
Bright Scholar—The time he lost his head.

Neuralgic Conditions of the Nerves

In this age of nervous disorders neuralgia is fearfully common. The first thought is of neuralgia in the head or splitting headache, but neuralgia may affect any part of the body in which there are sensitive nerves. The teeth are often blamed and extracted in error, when the cause of the trouble is in the impoverished condition of the blood and the starved nervous system.

While neuralgia pains are usually sharp and shooting, and consequently difficult to locate, the seat of trouble is usually sore and tender under pressure.

Neuralgia is pain, and as such is the symptom of a disease—nervous exhaustion. The nerves must be restored before cure can possibly be effected.

In many cases neuralgia is easily curable by the use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. The patient is thin and bloodless and needs tonic treatment to form new, rich blood. The application of cloths wrung from hot water will afford relief from the suffering, and the regular use of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food for a few weeks will completely overcome the neuralgic condition.

Powerful drugs are to be avoided, because of their injurious effect in further weakening the nervous system. The Nerve Food cures by building up the feeble, wasted nerve cells, and for this reason is of lasting benefit.

Canadian Pacific Railway is working out the details for the organization of a big egg circle in the irrigated block east of Calgary.

The immediate results of the organization of this "egg circle" will be that the farmers will receive at least 5 cents more a dozen for their eggs than heretofore, while the railroad will be assured of a constant supply of absolutely fresh stock for its dining cars. The agricultural branch agrees with the farmers to take all the eggs produced on the farms within the circle, with the understanding that if one bad egg is found in a case the contents of the whole case shall be condemned.

Hail Insurance for Municipalities

In another column will be found an advertisement calling for a vote on hail insurance for Mountain View Municipality No. 310, which is to be taken on July 8th. This is one of the sections taken from the new Municipalities Act passed by the Alberta government last year and is about the best solution for the hail insurance question because not only the man who improves his farm but also the speculator pays for this insurance by taxation which will amount to a very small sum, yet will provide a fund amply sufficient to pay all losses. The farmer in the municipalities who combine for this purpose will not be held up by private companies and there is no set time for which such insurance is payable. The Act says:

There is provision in the Rural Municipalities Act whereby any municipality may unite with nineteen other municipalities to form a hail insurance district. A by-law to do this must be submitted to the reside electors of the municipality and receive a majority vote before it can become law. As soon as twenty municipalities within a reasonable distance of each other have passed such a by-law, a hail insurance district will be established by the department. This hail insurance district will have a board to look after the affairs of such district. This board, which will be made up of the reeves of the different municipalities included, will make an estimate of the amount that will be required to meet current losses within the hail district. They will then notify the different municipalities as to the amount required, and a rate will be levied accordingly on all assessable lands within the municipalities in the hail district.

The board will employ the necessary officials, such as secretary treasurer and inspectors. Losses may be reported to any member of the board who shall forthwith cause an inspector to inspect the loss and report thereon.
The maximum indemnity that may be paid for a loss is $6.00 per acre. Any person may appeal from the inspect-or's report to the board, and the decision of the board in regard to any loss will be final. Where any insurance district is formed, the board is required to forward a statement of the rate to be levied in the different municipalities to the Minister of Municipal Affairs before the 15th day of January, for his approval. Where a hail insurance district is established it is required to continue in operation for five years, after which any municipality, if the majority of the resident electors so decide by voting on a by-law, may withdraw from the organization, and if less than twenty municipalities remain in the hail district

there is provision for the winding up of the affairs of the hail insurance district. By the organizing of a district of this kind the electors of a municipality will be able to obtain hail insurance at cost. Their grain will be insured because it is within the boundaries of the hail insurance district, and it will not be necessary for any application to be made for insurance. There is, therefore, no danger of a farmer forgetting to insure his crop as sometimes occurs under present conditions. As all assessable land is subject to assessment for hail insurance, it can easily be seen that a very small levy will bring in sufficient to meet all losses. As an example of the expense in a hail insurance district let us take a case where lands within a hail insurance district have an average value of $10 per acre. A rate of one mill will bring in $40,000, which at a valuation of $100 per acre would only be 1 cent per acre, or $1.60 per quarter section. This rate over a whole hail insurance district would permit of a maximum indemnity being paid on some six thousand acres, allow for considerable acreage not subject to assessment on account of being Dominion Government land, and also allow for the expenses of administration. If the amount raised in any one year was in excess of the amount required, it would lower the assessment in the following year accordingly.

Preparing for Big Calgary Fair

The exhibitors from this district are preparing their entries for the Calgary fair, which must be sent in before the end of the week. It is expected that we will be well represented among holiday. For those who go for entertainment there will be a big list of free attractions, splendid music, fast races, gorgeous fireworks and a midtractions which will be presented

Cause for Alarm

Loss of appetite or distress after eating—a symptom that should not be disregarded.

It is not what you eat but what you digest and assimilate that does you good. Some of the strongest, healthiest persons are moderate eaters.
Nothing will cause more trouble than a disordered stomach, and many people contract serious maladies through disregard or abuse of the stomach.

We urge all who suffer from indigestion, or dyspepsia, to try Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets, with the understanding that we will refund the money paid us without question or perfectly satisfied with results.

We recommend Rexall Dyspepsia Tablets to customers every day, and have yet to hear of one who has not been benefited. We believe them to be without equal. They give prompt

So it was settled. Jordan saw his visitor out, and as far as the first main crossing. Then they parted to meet on the morrow. Murgatroyd walked another couple of hundred yards, when he was lucky enough to come across a hansom just starting for its nocturnal beat. Murgatroyd called it; but was surprised at the driver's hesitation. He had forgotten his disguise. The sight of a half-crown simplified matters; and by 9 p.m. Murgatroyd was back again in Henrietta Street.

In half an hour Murgatroyd found himself for the second time that day at Sir Richard Hanley's but this time he asked for Miss Maud Hanley.

This way, sir; Miss Hanley is in the small drawing-room.

Mr. Murray Murgatroyd.
Maud rose from the depths of a lounge chair to greet him eagerly, and without ceremony.

How good of you to come again, Mr. Murgatroyd. You have brought me news of my watch?

Murgatroyd did not answer for a moment; strange unwonted thoughts were stirring in him, and he felt embarrassed.

Better than news; I have brought you the watch itself.

Murgatroyd, who was now in evening dress, took the watch and broken piece of chain out of his pocket, and held it out to her. Maud stretched out her hand eagerly.

Oh, I am so glad! I never expected it! How good you have been about it.

I am delighted it happened to be in my power. The police would have failed where I was fortunate enough to succeed.

They were still standing near to one another. There was an element of excitement about them both, not altogether warranted by the occasion, or the shallowness and brevity of their acquaintance.

So the police did not find it?

Maud was holding the watch in her hand, and caressing it with the other, almost as if it were an animate thing. No! I was my own policeman! I dressed for the part, but not in a blue uniform; and Murgatroyd laughed as

VARICOSE VEINS ABOVE ANKLE

Broke Into Sore, Itched and Burned So Badly Could Scarcely Sleep. Red and Inflamed. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Entirely Cured.

217 Greenwood Ave., Toronto, Ontario.—"My trouble was varicose veins above my ankle. It broke into a sore which was painful. The sore itched and burned so badly that I could scarcely sleep. The skin around it was red and inflamed. I could not wear a shoe for eight weeks. I tried several ointments but they didn't seem to do it any good. Then I was recommended to use Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I bathed with the Cuticura Soap and put a little Cuticura Ointment on and they gave the greatest relief. In a few weeks the sore was entirely cured." (Signed) Mrs. MacGregor, Feb. 21, 1912.

SALT RHEUM ON BABY'S HEAD

Woodstock, Yarmouth Co., N. S.—"My baby was about three weeks old when he had salt rheum on his head and forehead. It began in a little fine rash, which came on his head and down over his forehead and formed a hard, brown crust. It looked terrible, and it must have bothered him quite a lot, as he would not sleep. I used to wash him with the Cuticura Soap and hot water and put the Cuticura Ointment on, and in three weeks his head and forehead were clear. I can't speak too highly of the Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Soap." (Signed) Mrs. George B. Allen, Nov. 18, 1911.

he thought of the reflection he had seen in the wardrobe-glass of his bedroom half an hour before.
I hope you ran no risk?
It was not an altogether inviting neighborhood, so I took a friend with me.

Did your friend know for whom you were going?

He required to know nothing except my will, and Murgatroyd produced the tiny revolver from the coat pocket of his swallow-tail.

Maud shrank back a little, and Murgatroyd restored the weapon to its resting place.

That was my friend, he said quietly. I had no occasion to use it.

Won't you sit down?

Thank you, it is late—for a call; I ought to be going. He sat down nevertheless.

My father has gone to a reception at one of the Ambassadors'. I have not been presented yet. I am to be at the first drawing-room. Anyway, I should not go to those political things, I suppose.

Most girls hate politics. It was half an assertion, half a question.

I don't. Sometimes I love them.

To be able to rule men; and make history, and let other nations feel your power, especially when you are in the right. Oh, if I were a man, I should love that.

Not being a man, you do it vicariously—through your father, for instance.

The journalist did not know whether to be cynical or amused, or to allow himself to be carried away by Maud Hanley's enthusiasm. Had it been any one else, the first, and—to him—the most natural attitude would have been the second kick the beam.

But Maud was her father's daughter.

Yes, through my father. She was too full of her subject to be conscious of any chance irony.

Yet in politics there must be many devious moods, many suppressions of the truth, many suggestions of the false. It cannot all be the golden way of perfect openness and probity.

Maud's face clouded.
I know that, she said. I like my heroes to be all perfect; but that is romance, not life. Yet, surely, my father comes nearest to it of the men of our day.

She lifted her head proudly and gazed into Murgatroyd's eyes, as if she would read aspersions or even hesitation, and meet it with a challenge.

Murgatroyd bowed.

I am sure of it. I am, and always have been, in a humble way, his henchman. I fight under his banner.

If you have served him as well as you have served me, he ought not to complain.

He has been good enough to do more—to praise!—and to find me other work to do.

That is the best praise.

I suppose my father's task will take you longer than mine. You cannot do everything as quickly as you got my watch back.

It will take me away for a few days—a week perhaps. I wanted to ask you, may I call upon you—as well as as upon Sir Richard—when I return?

Of course! Why not? I am not 'out' yet. But I like to receive my friends; I have a few. You will always be my friend after getting me back my mother's watch.

Maud had extraordinary alternations between maturity and immaturity, which were not without their charm to the man of the world.

CHAPTER III—ANGLOPHOBIA

Mr. Muller's compliments, and would the gentleman staying at the 'Falcon' care to join Mr. Muller's whist-table this evening—8.30 p.m.

The long looked for invitation had come. When Mr. Murray Murgatroyd, accompanied by Jimmy Jordan in the capacity of valet, arrived at the Falcon, Tormouth, he soon gleaned the news that Mr. Muller was away from home, and a precious week, out of the short time available before the opening of Parliament, had elapsed before Muller's return.

Murgatroyd had had no difficulty in filling it in a manner which, at any other time, would have satisfied him completely. He had found ready to his hand a couple of handsome hunters well up to the heavy work of the districts.

He had been out with the East Devon twice, with satisfactory results, and once with the Devon and Somerset, when the meet was at Dulverton, on the Devon side of their extensive district.

But the business he had come upon, and which brooked no delay, was waiting, and these pleasant excursions after sport did not expedite matters.

Now Muller was back; and he had sent Murgatroyd the invitation with which mine host at the Falcon was familiar enough. Murgatroyd had been sorely tempted to make use of Mr. Jordan's capabilities in the borrowing direction with regard to the documents—especially as it was only the most temporary abstractions of which he required a copy—but he scrupled to use this means until direct negotiation had failed.

Highdene, Mr. Muller's house, was a long two-storied building, which had once been a monastery. Only the great refectory and a decapitated cloister remained to cast the halo of departed sanctity over the modern dwelling house, the greater part of which was only about a century old.

Some attempt however, had been made to adapt the more modern architecture to the older portions of the structure. The wind and weather of a hundred years had lent themselves to the deception; so that Highdene suggested a much greater antiquity than the greater portion of its walls actually possessed. Murgatroyd knocked at the iron-studded door, and was almost immediately admitted by a German footman, who spoke English with an accent which betrayed his nationality. Murgatroyd gave his name.

This way, sir.

They crossed the large hall, mounted three steps, leading into a flagged passage on which Indian and Persian rugs were flung carelessly at intervals. Arriving at a door on the left hand, the footman announced—

Mr. Murgatroyd, sir.

The journalist scanned his entertainer with more than usual curiosity. He was a very large man with a clean shaven face, blue eyes, an aquiline nose, a large mouth with irregular teeth, and a smile which was not prepossessing, suggesting a nature both sardonic and hard, possibly cruel.

BANISH PIMPLES AND ERUPTIONS

In the Spring Most People Need a Tonic Medicine.

One of the surest signs that the blood is out of order is the pimples, unsightly eruptions and eczema that come frequently with the change from winter to spring. These prove that the long indoor life of winter has had its effect upon the blood, and that a tonic medicine is needed to put it right. Indeed there are few people who do not need a tonic at this season.

Bad blood does not merely show itself in disfiguring eruptions. To this same condition is due attacks of rheumatism and lumbago; the sharp stabbing pains of sciatica and neuralgia; poor appetite and a desire to avoid exertion. You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers. Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, stimulates every organ and brings a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children.

If you are out of sorts give this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, revive drooping spirits, and fill your veins with new, health-giving blood.

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

CLEARED AWAY

Proper Food Put the Trouble Away

Our own troubles always seem more severe than any others. But when a man is unable to eat even a light breakfast, for years, without severe distress, he has trouble enough.

It is small wonder he likes to tell of food which cleared away the troubles.

"I am glad of the opportunity to tell of the good Grape-Nuts has done for me," writes an Eastern man—"For many years I was unable to eat even a light breakfast without great suffering.

"After eating I would suddenly be seized with an attack of colic and vomiting. This would be followed by headache and misery that would sometimes last a week or more, leaving me so weak I could hardly sit up or walk.

"Since I began to eat Grape-Nuts I have been free from the old troubles. I usually eat Grape-Nuts one or more times a day, taking it at the beginning of the meal. Now I can eat almost anything I want without trouble.

"When I began to use Grape-Nuts I was way under my usual weight, now I weigh 30 pounds more than I ever weighed in my life, and I am glad to speak of the food that has worked the change." Where Jake Drew the Line

Jake Tannenbaum owns a theatre in Mobile, where the Race question is very acute. Furthermore, he exercises great care in his scrutiny of the bills any company wishes to present in his house. One morning he received from a celebrated Shakespearean actor the list of plays to be put on during a run of seven days.

I see here, Romeo and Juliet, said Jake, running his finger down the list, and I will stand for that. But I shrink when I think of that fellow playing Romeo. And here's Hamlet. No man living can play Hamlet as he should be played. And here is Othello!

At this point Mr. Tannenbaum leaped out of his chair and hung on the ambient atmosphere a long and lingering groan.

It is too much! he cried in anguish. I am no fanatic. I am not a crazy man on the Race question. But I'm a son of a gun if I'm going to have in my theatre any black man handing out a lot of mushy talk to a white woman.

To have the children sound and healthy is the first care of a mother. They cannot be healthy if troubled with worms. Use Mother Graves' Worm Exterminator.

As Man to Man

Dick, I never thought my little boy would tell his mother a falsehood, exclaimed the mother in the well-known more-in-sorrow-than-in-anger kind of voice.

'Twasn't really a story, muttered Dick, with downcast countenance. I didn't run in the road, but only in the gutter.

That makes it worse. Half a story is worse than a whole one, as I've told you often. And now I feel it to be my duty to punish you severely.

This duty, he said, the mother performed most conscientiously. When father returned home, therefore, in the evening she found Dick looking very red-eyed and disconsolate.

Well, my poor little man, he asked, what is the matter?

Nothing, sniffed Dick!

But something must be wrong, sonny. Tell me.

Oh well, if you want to know, said Dick, with a scowl. I've just been having an awful row with my wife.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

Seeing is Believing

The weather was wet. Business had been bad. Hence Farmer Giles, never amiable, was even more irascible than usual.

As he stepped down from the cart on his return home from the market, he noticed a lantern-light moving about near his kitchen premises, and proceeded at once to make investigations.

To his surprise he discovered a yokel, lantern in hand, talking to his niece.

What's your business here? demanded Farmer Giles peremptorily.

I be come a courtin' master.

Come a what?

A courtin', sir. I be a courtin' Mary.

It's a lie. You've come here thieving. You know you have. No man goes courtin' with a lantern. At any rate, I never did.

No, sir, replied the yokel quietly. I shouldn't think so, judgin' by the misssus!

Henry Augustus was learning to dress himself. He was not so big as the name sounds.

Mother, looking on, said: Why, my son, you have your shoes on the wrong feet!

Well, screamed Henry Augustus, they're the only feet I have to put 'em on!

A Pleasant Prospect

I want you to put up some wallpaper I have bought, said the country clergyman, meeting the local man-of-all-work. When can you do it?

Well, sir, he exclaimed, you see, I'm rather busy just now. I hung Mrs. S— yesterday; I'm hanging your churchwarden today; but if it's convenient I'll drop round and hang your reverence on Wednesday.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

BOWSER DIES HARD

But His Mother-in-law Wins From Start to Finish.

SHE COMES UNEXPECTEDLY.

And Proceeds to Put Her Rampageous Son Through His Paces—The Lawn Will Not Be Planted in Hollyhocks; Neither Will the House Be Painted.

By M. QUAD.

[Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.]

I AM Mr. Bowser's mother-in-law. I am glad he married into the family.

He's just the kind of a man that needs taking down a peg or two every few days, and I'm just the woman to do it.

I believe he would poison me if he safely could, and I admit that some day I may break his neck.

I packed my trunk and took a little journey the other day. I gave him no advance warning that I was to arrive, but reached his home from the depot about 6 o'clock in the evening. He happened to be in the front hall and answered my ring himself, and for a moment after catching sight of me he looked like one who was staring at a ghost.

"If you have not lost what little sense you ever possessed," I said, "you will pay the driver and get my trunk upstairs. How is Amanda?"

"She—she—she is well!" he stammered. "We didn't expect you."

"No, probably not, but it's my little way of dropping in when I'm not expected. Get a move on you!"

Bowser's Plans.

I was soon in the arms of my daughter, and after dinner she took me up to her bedroom and told me how glad she was that I had come. Mr. Bowser

"I AM MR. BOWSER'S MOTHER-IN-LAW."

was on the rampage, and my arrival was opportune. After questioning her at length I discovered the following:

That he was planning to repaint the house, although it had two fresh coats last year.

That he was intending to plant the whole back yard to sunflowers next spring.

That the whole front yard was to be given up to hollyhocks.

That he was going to clean house and be three weeks about it.

That he was going to attend an auction sale next day and buy $500 worth of antique furniture.

That he had raised a row about the gas bill and charged his wife with having got up at midnight and turned on every burner in the house.

That she had hunted up a dressmaker for $2 per day and he had called it highway robbery and said he would stay home and do the sewing himself before he would pay any such extortion.

There were a lot more things, one of them being that he had borrowed a gun and was going out into the country next night to stay all night and shoot snipe, and, of course, I felt it my duty to tackle him as soon as possible. At the dinner table he was sullen and scowling, and the only time he spoke was when he said:

"I see by the papers that this has been a great year so far for the old women to die off."

"Yes, it has," I replied, "but I'm left on earth yet, and I can manage cranks as well as ever."

He Stays Home.

Directly after dinner I heard him telling Amanda that he'd drop over to the What Is It club for an hour or two and give us a chance to talk, but I crooked my finger at him and said:

"Mr. Bowser, that What Is It will wait for you in vain tonight. Your mother-in-law has arrived, and there are a few things she would like to say to you."

"But I don't care to talk," he gruffly replied.

"But you will talk just the same. If you want to talk to me here, all right; if you want me to follow you to the club, just put on your hat."

He hung in the wind for a minute and then sat down and began whispering to himself to show that he was not afraid. Mrs. Bowser motioned me over his head to spare him all I could, but it did not soften my heart. Mr. Bowser is a man who cannot be spared. The only way to deal with him is to crush him. True, he will only stay crushed as long as I am in the house, but it has a moral effect afterward.

"Mr. Bowser," I presently began, "what is this I hear about the gas bill?"

"Your daughter has wasted $2 worth to spite me," he replied.

"You know better, sir! The idea of a baldheaded man weighing 200 pounds telling any such story as that looks like boy's play. Don't you want some bread and butter with sugar on it? You never go down cellar that you don't leave a blaze of light behind you. That's where the gas has gone. You are the most careless man in the world around the house. Let me hear no more about Amanda's extravagance. Now, about this repainting?"

"The house is to have two coats, and I am going to do the work myself. I calculate it will take me two weeks."

"Well, I don't calculate it will take you two minutes! The house doesn't need it, and no painting will be done. If you were to damb around here for two weeks your own wife and half of the neighbors would commit suicide."

"What! I can't paint my own house if I want to!" he shouted as he got up and began to prance around.

His Mother-in-law Scores.

"My language was plain, sir! Sit down before you get a crick in the back. There will not only be no painting done, but if you want to raise sunflowers and hollyhocks, go and hire a piece of vacant ground. I do not admire them, and as I may be here all summer I object to having them around."

"She may be here all summer!" he groaned to himself.

"Having disposed of the hollyhocks and the sunflowers, we will take up housecleaning," I continued.

"Amanda will see to that and take about three days, and while she is doing it you can either eat off the kitchen table and sleep on the floor and behave yourself or go to some hotel."

"By thunder, woman, I—!"

"That will do, Mr. Bowser! Don't swear at me and don't call me 'woman'! You are red in the face, and your ears are twitching, but it will do no good to get mad. I am the mother-in-law. I am it!"

"Woman, this is too much, too much! I'd like to know!"

"You will know all as we go along. Mr. Bowser. If you are not very careful of your emotions you will tumble down with apoplexy some day. And now about the dressmaker. I shall go after her the first thing in the morning. Her prices are very reasonable, and if they weren't it is not up to you to kick. If you want a seven dollar box of cigars, you order them without a quailm. It will be $2 per day for about two weeks, and she won't need your assistance with the darned needle!"

He Is Quiet.

"I am told that you have borrowed a gun and are going to the country to shoot snipe at night. In the first place, you couldn't hit a barn at ten rods; in the next, snipe don't fly at night; in the third, that gun will be trotted home in the morning. If there is any running around nights you can run to the theater with Mrs. Bowser. What were you going to say?"

"I was going to say, woman," he thickly replied as he failed his arms about—"I was going to say that my name is Bowser."

"Yes."

"And this is my house."

"Yes."

"And I run things to suit myself. What right have you to come down here and—"

"The right of the mother-in-law, sir, and that's the best right in the world. One more thing this evening. You were saying you'd drop over to the What Is It club for a couple of hours. Well, you won't drop. They will miss you, and they'll be inquiring why it is. But let 'em inquire. Your place is right here, and here you will stay."

"I am going up to join Amanda now, who is a bit nervous, and if you go to banging doors, rattling the furnace or stamping up and down you'll hear from me. You may think it a good time to mend the water pipes, fix a door, experiment on the gas meter or drive nails, but let me assure you to the contrary. These few words this evening are only a sort of a prologue. Tomorrow we will get down to real business and have a thorough understanding."

I vanished upstairs, and Mr. Bowser shook his fist after me and tramped around for the next ten minutes like an angry lion. He didn't know whether to burst out a window or break three or four chairs, but at last he flung himself down on the lounge to think it all over. An hour later his wife and I came creeping softly upstairs. We found him asleep and a tear on his cheek, while the cat occupied a nearby chair and regarded him with looks of sorrow. Rampageous Bowser had been quieted.

When a Person Faints.

If a person faints he ought to be laid down flat on his back, for this will facilitate the return of blood to his head. Indeed, nature has provided for this, for a person who faints will fall down and soon recover if no one interferes. On the other hand, a person with an epileptic or cataleptic fit, indicated by convulsions and frothing at the mouth, ought to be propped up so as to facilitate the flow of blood from the head to the lower parts of the body, which may be still further promoted by slapping the palms of the hands. Now, I cannot account for it, but the fact is that all ignorant people, in an emergency, reverse this treatment. A person who simply faints is carefully supported in a chair, and the face is piled with cold water applications, fanned, the result being that the fainting is prolonged. On the other hand, a man who drops in the street with epilepsy or catalepsy is invariably laid flat on his back, which in some cases is enough to kill him.—Family Doctor.

Turkish Artillery.

Authorities tell us that the Turks owe their reverses in recent years to their weakness in artillery. In 1453 it was by virtue of their artillery that they captured Constantinople. In 1452 a Hungarian named Orban came to Constantinople and offered his services to the Greek emperor as the "ablest founder in history." Constantine offered him unsatisfactory conditions, and he escaped to Mohammed II, who commanded him to cast a gigantic cannon as proof of his talent. Orban took three months over the task, and the cannon was called (probably as an omen) Basilicann. The sultan issued a warning proclamation concerning the day on which it would be tested in Adrianople, with good reason, for the explosion was heard for thirteen miles around. The size of the cannon was heroic. Fifty yoke of oxen were necessary to move it, 200 men marched at the side to support it, 200 engineers went in front to level the road and fifty carpenters to make bridges.—Westminster Gazette.

Areas Below Sea Level.

All the continents, with the possible exception of South America, contain areas of dry land which are below sea level.

In North America, according to the United States geological survey, the lowest point is in Death valley, California, 276 feet below sea level, but this is a slight depression compared to the basin of the Dead Sea, in Palestine, Asia, where the lowest dry land point is 1,200 feet below sea level. In Africa, the lowest point is in the desert of Sahara, about 150 feet below sea level, but the Sahara as a whole is not below sea-level, although until recently the greater part of it was supposed to be. In Europe the lowest point at present known is on the shores of the Caspian sea, eighty feet below sea level. In Australia the lowest point is at Lake Torrens, twenty-five feet below sea level.

MONSTER HEADDRESSES.

Women at One Time Wore Fleets of Vessels in Their Hair.

Marie Antoinette had a passion for extraordinary headdresses. One structure that she invented was forty-five inches in height and was composed of many yards of gauze and ribbon. From the folds sprang bunches of roses, and the entire edifice was surmounted by a waving plume of white feathers. It is recorded that when Maria Theresa received a portrait of her daughter wearing this headdress she exclaimed: "This is no daughter of mine! It is the portrait of an actress!"

The Duchess de Chartres, determined to surpass the queen, designed a headdress two inches higher. It was made up of many plumes waving at the top of a tower. Two waxen figures, representing the little Comte de Beaujolais (the brother of Louis Philippe) in his nurse's arms, were worn as ornaments. Beside them a parrot perched at a plate of cherries, and the wax figure of a black boy reclined at the nurse's feet. On different parts of the tower were the initials of the duchesse's husband, her father and her father-in-law, made from her own hair.

At this time France and England were at war. In a naval engagement the French frigate Licorne struck her flag, but the Belle Poule, another French vessel, crippled the Hector, an English man-of-war. As the Frenchmen were about to board two English vessels bore down to their consort's assistance, and the Belle Poule sailed away. The English fleet returned to Plymouth with two prizes, the Licorne and a French lugger.

The French, although they had lost a frigate, proclaimed a victory. The queen and her women wore headdresses that represented the Belle Poule under full sail plowing a sea of green gauze in pursuit of the English frigate. This construction was known as the "coiffure Belle Poule."

The wife of an English officer living in Paris deemed the headdress an insult to the English navy and determined to resent it. At the next public occasion therefore she appeared carrying on her head five English line of battle ships, a French frigate and a lugger. An arrangement of silk and gauze represented Plymouth harbor, which the English ships, with their prizes, were entering. Each vessel carried a streamer that bore its name, and on the edifice at the back the word "Plymouth" appeared in glittering beads.

The audacity of the spirited Englishwoman struck every one dumb except the chief of police, who invited her to cross the frontier at her earliest convenience.—Youth's Companion.

MEANING OF "POTLUCK."

One Plunge of the Ladle, and Take What You Get.

The real origin of the word "potluck" is unknown to most of the people who use it. In Limoges, France, however, one runs into potluck itself. In a certain corner of that quaint city of jostling roofs there is still segregated, much as it is in a ghetto, a Saracen population, probably a remnant of the wave of Saracens that swept over Europe hundreds of years ago. Here they live in their crooked, narrow streets, following old customs handed down from generation to generation. There are many butcher shops in the quarter, and outside of each steams a great pot of soup over a glowing brazier. In each pot stands a ladle as ancient as the pot.

When a customer comes with a penny, in goes the ladle and comes up full of savory broth and chunks of meat, odds and ends that the butcher has had left over. And what comes up the customer has to take. One can imagine how anxiously the hungry urchin or the mother of seven must eye the inexorable ladle and how a pretty girl might get another draw from the butcher's boy.

At any rate, "to take potluck" means to take what you get and say nothing, whether the pot is in Limoges or in the flat of the man who eagerly invites a friend of his youth to dinner.—New York Sun.

Gives Warning of a Storm.

In the bay of Biscay frequently during the autumn and winter in calm weather a heavy sea gets up and rolls in on the coast four and twenty hours before the gale which causes it arrives and of which it is the prelude. In this case the wave action, generated on the other side of the Atlantic by the wind, travels at a much greater rate than that of the body of disturbed air and thus gives warning of the coming storm.

Discontentment.

"She looks so discontented and dissatisfied."

"No wonder! She has a husband who gets everything she wants."—London Opinion.

Literally Speaking.

He—Ever notice what a heavy face Mrs. Strongmud has?

She—Yes. What a thump there'd be if her countenance fell.

For the Children

A Young New Yorker at Play in Central Park.

© 1913, by American Press Association.

The overcoated, sailor hatted young gentleman shown in the above picture is Roger V. N. Powelson, son of Lieutenant W. V. N. Powelson, United States navy, retired. There have been little ice and snow in New York this winter, and Master Powelson, who is disporting himself in Central park, is equipped with roller skates. No doubt he would much prefer to be able to use ice skates, but the weather man has decreed otherwise. The asphalt walks of Central park are admirably adapted to roller skates, but what boy or girl would not prefer real ice and the skates that go with it? Master Powelson looks to be a sturdy lad and, with his playmates, may be seen on every pleasant day enjoying his outing.

A Good Geography Game.

Most girls and boys like games that exercise the wits. Here is a good one for a rainy day or a long evening.

A leader is chosen, and every player has a pencil and paper. The leader then selects a word—"republic," for instance—and each player writes all the geographical names he can think of beginning with R, the first letter of the word. Three minutes is usually allowed for each letter. When the leader calls "Time" every one should stop writing.

The leader then reads his column of names, and as he calls a word all the others who have it say "Yes" and draw a line through it. If all have the word that is the end of it, but in case some have failed to write it then those who have it write after the word the number of those who have it not. These numbers count for game.

When the leader has read all the names on his list the player at his left reads the words remaining on his list, marking numbers after them as before. If the next player has any words left he reads them, and so on through the company. Then each one adds his numbers and sets down the total and is ready for the next letter, E. The leader calls "Begin" and at the end of three minutes "Time," and they proceed as before.

Whenever a name is challenged, the writer must tell something about it and where the place may be found.

Descriptions.

Pass around slips of paper to each player. Each one writes his or her own name at the top of the paper and folds it over to conceal the name. These slips are collected and then redistributed, with instructions to compose and write a rime or verse about the person whose name is on the paper, of course without looking or knowing whose it is. The apropos, or malapropos, hits make lots of fun.

Then distribute slips to the young men only, each having the name of some girl present written at the top and folded over to keep it secret. The young men are to describe the girl from memory. Not knowing whom they are to portray, they naturally produce most glaring misfits, which are very laughable.

Up to Date.

"Are you interested in contemporary history?"

"Not much. I am more interested in what is going on now."—Baltimore American.

Dr. McKenzie, Moderator

Toronto, June 4.—In Massey Hall, crowded to suffocation, and at the close of a meeting of intense spiritual enthusiasm, the Rev. Dr. Murdoch MacKenzie, for twenty-five years a Missionary of the Presbyterian church in Honan, China, was tonight elected moderator of the Presbyterian Assembly, and he will have the distinguished honor of presiding at the various meetings of the most memorable gathering in the history of the Church. Dr. MacKenzie was elected with great unanimity and was conducted to the crowded platform amid the plaudits of the audience. He was welcomed by the retiring moderator, Rev. Dr. D. G. McQueen, and took charge of the subsequent proceedings.

Dr. MacKenzie, the new moderator, was born in Scotland, where Presbyterianism has thriven greatly for three hundred years. He received his education partly in the old land, but chiefly at the theological seminary in Montreal. He went to Honan in 1888, and has been actively engaged in the work of the denomination in that country since that time. He is well known to the church in Western Canada and has preached in many of the larger churches. He is a man of average height, of stocky build and of sturdy appearance. He wears a full beard, now grizzled and gray. He is outspoken and decisive in speech, and is clear and unequivocal in all his convictions. His selection exemplifies the general spirit of the assembly which looks forward to a great forward missionary movement, both at home and abroad. The general undertaking of the church at home was considered at a great mass meeting in Massey Hall on Thursday night, and the subject of foreign missions was taken up at a similar gathering on Friday night. None of the ordinary business of the assembly was considered on either of these evenings.

It will be remembered that Dr. MacKenzie spoke in the Didsbury Presbyterian church last winter, when he made a great impression on those who heard him.

Baseball Meeting

A meeting of the Didsbury baseball club was held on Thursday last at the Golden West Hotel. Jimmy McGee acted as chairman.

The principal business was to work for a stronger team, and Manager Pirie asked for a field captain to assist him and take charge of the team when they lined up for a game, also to assist him to select the players at practice.

Walter Scheidt was selected as field captain.

The secretary treasurer reported finances in good condition except for a small amount which is yet to be collected.

The secretary-treasurer was asked to purchase some lighter bats and a score book.

An agreement was made with the football players to practice turn about. The baseball club to have Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays and the football club to have Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays, and each team agreed to assist the other at practice and to support each other at the games.

Albert Howe and Mr. Owens were elected to look after the gate and collect the money paid for admission.

It was agreed to hold a dance Tuesday evening after the game with the Carstairs club, the dance to be a joint affair, the proceeds to be divided with the football club, and the secretary-treasurer was asked to notify Carstairs. A committee was appointed to arrange the dance.

Arrangements were made to play a game with the fastest team from the Calgary City league, date to be set later, and Manager Pirie was asked to secure the services of some outside players, a battery from Calgary and a couple of good fielders. The idea of this game is to give the boys some pointers and to help them to play their positions in better shape.

Manager Pirie has some important changes for the next game and said that the boys would have to hustle to hold a place as he is out after the cup.

It Didn't Work

Two young women stood at the tram junction.

"They're all crowded, 'Mille, we'd better walk, said one."

You walk if you want to, but I'm going to ride, and I bet you'll get a seat, too, bumptiously retorted Mille.

The stronger will prevailed and the two boarded the next car that came along. Of course, it was crowded just as had been the previous ones.

Since no one offered a seat to the women, the younger of the two mischievously whispered:

"Thought you said you'd get a seat, Mille?"

You wait, replied the other; then, going up to a sedate-looking gentleman, she exclaimed:

"My dear Mr. Green, how delighted I am to meet you again! You are almost a stranger. Will I accept your seat?"

Well, I do feel tired, I admit. Thank you so much.

The man rose.

Sit down, Jane, my girl, said he, pointing to the vacant seat. I don't often see you out on a washing-day.

You must feel tired, I'm sure. How's your mistress?"

Regarding the late Concerts which King George and Queen Mary contemplated reviving, it might be mentioned that many complaints have been made in the past about the overcrowding at these functions. The official list of guests has so considerably increased that it has been necessary for the Lord Chamberlain to invite a much larger number than can be comfortably accommodated. During Queen Victoria's reign the number was limited to two thousand. Everybody who has been in office or who is in office gets an invitation to a State ceremonial as a matter of course, and there are a great number of other personages who are on the permanent list.

Use Some 'Nerviline'

A Traveler's Experience Related

The experience of Mr. Norman P. Hendricks is not an unusual one. Writing from Prince Albert, he says:

"My business calls me from one place to another, and I am frequently up against the bad water problem of the Canadian North-West. In so many places the water disagrees with me, and I used to be kept very miserable on that account. An old settler told me one day that nothing is so useful to newcomers as Nerviline, and he explained to me how valuable it proved to him under similar circumstances twenty-five years ago. You would hardly believe how happy and comfortable my trips are since I learned of Nerviline. I look upon 'Nerviline' as my trusty friend, and give it a place of honor in my hand bag. In fact I wouldn't think of being without it in a country like this. It cures any little stomach trouble or digestive disturbances and relieves a cramp in ten seconds. To cure Neuralgia, Earache, Toothache, or pain in your muscles like Rheumatism, you simply can't beat Nerviline."

To cure little ills before they grow big and to relieve the aches and pains of the whole family get Nerviline today. Family size, 50c.; trial size, 25c.; at all storekeepers and druggists, or The Catarrhzone Co., Buffalo, N.Y.

Unsatisfactory Imagination

Perkins was feeling decidedly queer; he couldn't get on with his work, he couldn't do anything. So he decided to pay a visit to the doctor.

I don't feel up to the mark at all, he said to the man of medicine. Can you give me a good tonic?

With pursed lips the doctor surveyed him for a moment or two, and rising from his chair, remarked:

Has it ever occurred to you that there's a great deal in imagination, Mr. Perkins?

Certainly, doctor, answered Perkins.

Then go out of this surgery and imagine that there's nothing the matter with you. Come back in a week and let me know how you feel!

The patient went, doctored himself, and returned to the physician at the appointed time.

Ah, ah, said the doctor. You are feeling better now, I can see. Did not I tell you there was a great deal in imagination?

That's true, said Perkins. What is your charge?

One guinea, said the doctor.

Well, imagine you've got it, said Perkins.

It Was

There was an explosion in a powder mill, and the proprietor, who was away on a pleasure trip, hurried home to make an investigation.

How in the world did it happen? he asked the foreman of the mill as he viewed the wreck. Who was to blame?

Well, you see, sir, replied the foreman, it was this way. Bill went into the mixing-room, probably thinking of something else, and struck a match in mistake.

Struck a match, exclaimed the proprietor in amazement. I should have thought that was the last thing on earth he'd do.

It was, sir, was the calm rejoinder of the foreman.

Sores Flee Before It.—There are many who have been afflicted with sores and have driven them away with Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil, which acts like magic. All similarly troubled should lose no time in applying this splendid remedy, as there is nothing like it to be had. It is cheap, but its power is in no way expressed by its low prices.

Not Readily Explainable

The old sporting squire was giving a dinner to his friends to mark his farewell to the chase.

Being well known for his tales, voices on all sides asked for his biggest achievement.

As was usual he demurred for a moment, but the expectant assembly persisted.

Well, said he, I remember taking off the right ear and the hoof of one of the hind feet of a deer with one shot!

Impossible, exclaimed his guests with a laugh. How could you do such a thing?

For a moment the old squire seemed to have forgotten himself, and he turned in his chair to his old butler John, to whom he always appealed in cases of emergency.

John, do you remember how I did it?

There was a moment's pause.

Oh, yes, sir, said John, perfectly well. Don't you remember the deer was scratching its ear with its hind foot when you fired?

A Quick Solution

Angrily, moodily, Jack Jenkins, sign writer, surveyed the exterior of Nicholas Petroff Scavenger's new drapery emporium. There could be no doubt that Jenkins was greatly perturbed over something. Presently his rage broke all bounds.

The mean, hook-nosed, price-cutting villain! he yelled. If he doesn't pay me I'll—I'll smash every window in his shop.

What's the trouble, matey, asked a passing Irishman.

"Trouble!" answered poor Jenkins, trembling with rage. It's that villain inside the shop that's troubling me. I've stood on this ladder painting his name for a week past, in all weathers. Four chills have I caught, and ought to be in bed now with influenza, and yet the wicked scamp won't pay me.

Begorra, said Pat, does the thafe expect ye to work for nothing? And he walked to the door and ominously surveyed the interior.

It looks like it! snarled Jenkins.

Then don't ye do it, cried the Irishman. Let me hold the ladder and ye take my knife and scrape his name off again.

Stories of dead men's ghosts are common enough, but the shade of Mr. T. P. O'Connor is probably unique, inasmuch as it has been seen whilst the man himself is, happily, still in the land of the living. Twenty years ago "T. P." was called suddenly to Ireland to his dying mother. At the time when he was crossing St. George's Channel his apparition was seen by Mr. Swift MacNeill and others occupying his usual place in the House.

AROUND THE TOWN

The league baseball game between Carstairs and Didsbury on Tuesday evening was called off after playing one inning because of rain. Each team had scored one run and the game promised to be an exciting one if the weather man had seen fit to keep the water tap turned off for the evening.

The dance held by the Didsbury Baseball and Football Clubs in the Opera House on Tuesday night was a great success, a large number of the young people, including a number from Carstairs, taking advantage of the occasion to trip the light fantastic and incidentally to help fill the coffers of the clubs. The Didsbury orchestra gave perfect satisfaction as usual with their music.

Enlarged Business

Their store, two doors south of the drug store, is clean, bright and up-to-date, and their customers will find quick service combined with right prices. Give them a call.
